C1_W3 Quiz

For data to be considered reliable,

- it needs to be free of all errors.
- it needs to be relevant to the use case.

Sensor data is produced by wearable devices, smart buildings, and medical devices.

Emails are considered a source of semi-structured data as they have some organizational properties but do not follow a rigid schema.

the steps in the "Identifying Data" workflow:

- Determining the information you need to collect
- Defining a plan for collecting the data you have identified

Data obtained from an organization's internal CRM, HR, and workflow applications

- is not classified as secondary data.
- is Primary data

SQL offers simple commands for retrieving data from relational databases.

Web scraping is used for extracting text, videos, and images from the web.